New Politics Vol. XVII No. 1, Whole Number 65

written by newpolitics | July 22, 2018

- From the Editors
- Walkouts Teach U.S. Labor a New Grammar for Struggle, Lois Weiner
- What's Left of the Brazilian Left: Reasons for Cautious Optimism from the Landless Workers Movement, Rebecca Tarlau
- Special Section: Remembering 1968
    - 1968: The Year of Dangerous Living, Martin Oppenheimer
    - The Columbia Rebellion (1968), Richard Greeman
- Articles
    - Marxism and Freedom After Sixty Years, For Yesterday and Today, Kevin Anderson
    - Reconnecting Reform and Revolution: Socialists in the Mist, Michael Hirsch
    - Black Neighborhoods Matter: An Interview with Lawrence Brown on Commu-nity Trauma and Healing, Nicole Fabricant
    - Battleground Seattle: A Clash of Classes and a Brewing Perfect Storm, Mathieu Dubeau and Lee Fiorio
    - Inequality was Increasing Before Trump, Rick Baum
    - Our Passive Society, Chris Wright
    - Socialism as Pacifism, Bryant William Sculos
    - Libya Under Gaddafi, Clay Claiborne
- Words & Pictures
    - Political Visual Narrative, Kent Worcester
- Reviews
    - What I Saw at the (Political) Revolution, Jason Schulman, Review of Heather Gautney, Crashing The Party: From the Bernie Sanders Campaign to a Progressive Movement
    - Radical America, Dan Georgakas, Review of Paul Le Blanc, Left Americana: The Radical Heart of US History
    - Class Does Matter, Paul Buhle, Review of Steve Fraser, Class Matters: The Strange Career of an American Obsession

- Labor and the South, Martin Comack, Review of Ribas, On the Line: Slaughterhouse Lives and the Making of the New South