From the Editors
Walkouts Teach U.S. Labor a New Grammar for Struggle, Lois Weiner
What’s Left of the Brazilian Left: Reasons for Cautious Optimism from the Landless Workers Movement, Rebecca Tarlau

Special Section: Remembering 1968
  1968: The Year of Dangerous Living, Martin Oppenheimer
  The Columbia Rebellion (1968), Richard Greeman

Articles
  Marxism and Freedom After Sixty Years, For Yesterday and Today, Kevin Anderson
  Reconnecting Reform and Revolution: Socialists in the Mist, Michael Hirsch
  Black Neighborhoods Matter: An Interview with Lawrence Brown on Community Trauma and Healing, Nicole Fabricant
  Battleground Seattle: A Clash of Classes and a Brewing Perfect Storm, Mathieu Dubeau and Lee Fiorio
  Inequality was Increasing Before Trump, Rick Baum
  Our Passive Society, Chris Wright
  Socialism as Pacifism, Bryant William Sculos
  Libya Under Gaddafi, Clay Claiborne

Words & Pictures
  Political Visual Narrative, Kent Worcester
· Reviews
  ◦ What I Saw at the (Political) Revolution, Jason Schulman, Review of Heather Gautney, Crashing The Party: From the Bernie Sanders Campaign to a Progressive Movement
  ◦ Radical America, Dan Georgakas, Review of Paul Le Blanc, Left Americana: The Radical Heart of US History
  ◦ Class Does Matter, Paul Buhle, Review of Steve Fraser, Class Matters: The Strange Career of an American Obsession
  ◦ Labor and the South, Martin Comack, Review of Ribas, On the Line: Slaughterhouse Lives and the Making of the New South